

180 titles across thirty-five disciplines

The Arts & Sciences VII Collection contains the most non-US titles in the arts, humanities, and social sciences

The Arts & Sciences VII Collection includes journals with extensive publishing histories, such as Transactions of the Royal Historical Society, with more than 130 years in print, and Transactions of the American Philosophical Society, which is the oldest scholarly publication in the United States.

Preminent journals in the arts and humanities add significant depth to the archive's core disciplines, led by titles such as Dædalus from the American Academy of Arts & Sciences. Dædalus draws on the enormous intellectual capacity of the American Academy, whose Fellows are among the nation's most prominent thinkers.

The collection includes an extraordinary range of titles in the fields of business and economics, including Econometric Theory and The Journal of Marketing, the official publication of the American Marketing Association (AMA). This cluster also features multidisciplinary journals such as The American Journal of Economics and Sociology and The Business History Review, founded in 1926 and publishing research by historians, economists, sociologists, and scholars of business administration.

Broadening JSTOR's coverage in art history, this collection features publications from distinguished institutions such as the British Museum, the Art Institute of Chicago, the Philadelphia Museum of Art, the Princeton University Art Museum, and the Staatliche Museen zu Berlin (the Berlin State Museums).

Diverse non-US scholarship spans many disciplines within the collection. Notable journals include Revista de Critica Literaria Latinoamericana, focused on Latin American literature and culture with text in Spanish and Portuguese, and Desarrollo Económico, published by the Institute for Economic and Social Development (Instituto de Desarrollo Económico y Social). Also included is Cahiers d'Études Africaines, an international and interdisciplinary bilingual journal devoted to the study of Africa, the Caribbean, and the Americas.

Current issues in JSTOR

Beginning in January 2011, current journal issues will be available via the Current Scholarship Program, and scholars will be able to seamlessly access current and archival content via the JSTOR platform. The Arts & Sciences VII Current Collection will feature eleven titles for the 2011 subscription year. Additional titles will be added to this collection over time.

- American Indian Quarterly
- Economic Development and Cultural Change
- International Journal of American Linguistics
- Math Horizons
- Mexican Studies/Estudios Mexicanos
- NBER Macroeconomics Annual
- The Pacific Historical Review
- The Public Historian
- Social Problems
- The Western Historical Quarterly

Enhanced discovery & usability

More content formats Historical content is available as full-color or gray-scale page scans, creating a more faithful replication of the original printed page. Current issues are available as PDFs and full-text HTML. Multimedia files, including audio and video, are also available for some titles.

Reference linking JSTOR includes thousands of reference links that enable users to move from citations within articles to other articles in JSTOR.

Forward linking From a sidebar on article view pages, users can link to articles in JSTOR or Google Scholar™ that cite the current article, and to related articles in Google Scholar™.

Seamless access to current and historical content For a growing subset of titles, users are able to search and browse beyond the moving wall, retrieving links to the full-text of the most recent journal issues at the publisher's website.

Searching on A&I databases JSTOR has partnered with several abstract and indexing databases to provide article-level linking to JSTOR for participating institutions. Partners include ABC-CLIO's Historical Abstracts, EBSCOhost, Elsevier (SCOPUS), and Thomson ISI.

Personalization with MyJSTOR Users can save searches and citations, and can opt in to receive email alerts when new content matches their saved search terms.

Participating in Arts & Sciences VII

Participating libraries can be assured of continued access to all titles available in the collection. For the Archive Collection, our standards and processes result in complete, clean, high-quality, functional digital replicas of print materials that can be trusted and relied upon by content owners, libraries, and users. In addition, JSTOR is committed to providing and maintaining a long-term sustainable archive and invests in the upgrade of the digital files, including data migration.
